Comments:

- Frank Neubert took part in invasion at Poland - "Fall Weiss" operation. Early morning September 1st, 1939, his dive bomber unit started to destroy Polish airbase in Krakow (base was empty - a day before Polish air forces were moved to reserve airfields). But in clouds Neubert and his gunner Franz Klinger, lost ordinance with other unit crews and lost course. Few minutes he looked for main target and find another "lost" Ju 87B. They located at last (empty) Krakow airfield and dropped their bombs. Dive bombers were on return way, when Neubert saw a pair of landed P-24's (note: they just started and there were PZL P-11c's). He noticed, that one of them come after Lt. Branderburg's Ju 87, and decided to attack Polish fighters. Frank Neubert shot two good targeted series into Cpt. Medwecki (commander of Squadron) plane. "Eleventh" stand in fire and crashed into ground. This same time second Polish fighter, piloted by Sec.Lt. Wladyslaw Gnys fast come out from German attack. After few second Gnys took position after Brandenburg's "Stuka" and opened fire. The cloud rescued German plane. They luckily all returned to main Nieder-Elguth airfield. In this battle Frank Neubert scored probably first air victory in WW II. It's depend from time of attack: some sources reported that's happend at 5:30 a.m., but most facts and relations pointed the right time about 7:00 a.m. In that case first air winner in WW II will be Lt. Stanislaw Skalski , after his own relation he downed alone recon Hs 126 at 5:32 a.m. (Bergström, Christer – Tyminski, Dariusz: Frank Neubert and the first WW II air victory, WWII Ace Stories, <http://www.elknet.pl/acestory/neubert/neubert.htm>)
